12 Per Cent Rebate, Higher Fuel Oil Tariffs

Ford Proposes Tough Anti-Recession Measures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scrapping much of his go-easy economic program, President Ford will seek tough new antirecession measures: a 12 per cent rebate on 1974 personal income taxes, import barriers that will lead to higher gasoline prices and a lid on most federal spending. "We are in trouble," the President told a national television audience Monday in a speech from the White House library that previewed Wednesday's State of the Union message.

Ford said the country is not on the brink of a 1930-style depression. He indicated WIN buttons are no longer enough and said the government must take strong measures to counter unemployment and recession as well as inflation. Among them:

—A 12 per cent rebate on last year's federal income taxes, up to $1,000 per tax return, that would release $12 billion of potential purchasing power to consumers. An average family of four earning $12,000 in 1974 and paying $1,228 in taxes would get $147.36 in two equal payments in May and September.

—$4 billion in investment tax incentives for business.

—A $30 billion increase in energy taxes and tariffs designed to make Americans cut down on the use of gasoline and fuel oil. This will likely mean a sudden price hike of about 7 cents a gallon in retail gasoline with even higher prices to come.

—A one-year moratorium on new federal spending programs and a clear threat to veto any new money measures passed by Congress.

Ford's Economic Proposals Face Significant Changes

—A temporary 5 per cent ceiling on federal pay increases and a similar lid on automatic boosts in Social Security benefits and government and military retirement.

Ford said he would use his emergency powers to raise the tariff, or import fee, on petroleum by $3 a barrel within 90 days. The idea is to encourage conservation and development of alternative sources of energy to high priced Middle East crude oil.

Most of the program will require Congress' approval, and early reaction showed Ford's desire to give even wealthy taxpayers a slice of the 1974 rebate was in for tough sledding.

"Any credit for 1974 taxes would have to be given to the low and moderate income group to be acceptable to Congress in my judgment," said Al Ullman, D-Ore., and acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, the panel that must clear all tax bills.

Ullman agreed with Ford on the amount of money needed to stimulate the slumping economy —$43 billion that is likely to leave Ford, an avowed fiscal conservative, sporting the biggest budget deficit since the free-spending New Deal administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Most of that sum derives from energy tax revenues that Ford said should be passed through to consumers, businesses and local governments in the form of payments and credits. This includes a cash payment to the poorest Americans who pay no income tax at all.

Ford chose the informal setting of the basement library, at times standing near a blazing fireplace, to convey his stern message to the country. "Americans are at their very best when the going is rough," he said at the outset. "Right now the going is rough and it may get rougher. But if we do what must be done, we will be well on our way to better days."

A few hours earlier, House Democratic leaders laid down their remedies for the nation's ills including limited wage-price controls on the biggest industries, allocation of credit to housing and small business, more public service jobs,

How the Proposed Program Works

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here are questions and answers relating to President Ford's proposed economic program:

Q. What are the major points in the President's plan?

A. A 12 per cent rebate on 1974 personal income taxes plus additional tax breaks, including cash payments to low-income citizens, later this year. Tax breaks for business to encourage investment. An increase in the tariff on imported crude oil, plus taxes to discourage gasoline consumption and penalize industry windfall profits. A 5 per cent ceiling on Social Security increases in 1975 and a one-year moratorium on federal spending programs, except in the energy area.

Q. When will all this happen?

A. Ford will use his emergency powers to immediately raise the tariff on petroleum imports. The other proposals require the approval of Congress and that will take several months at the soonest.

Q. What about this rebate scheme? How does it work?

A. The administration proposes to give you back 12 per cent of the amount of taxes you paid in 1974, up to a maximum $1,000 per taxpayer. Assuming Congress goes along, the rebate would come in two equal installments — a check in May and one in September.

Q. How much money does this mean?

A. Well, the average family of four with a 1974 income of $12,000 will pay $1,228 in federal taxes, according to the Internal Revenue Service. The rebate would kick back $147.36 of that amount in two payments of $73.68.

Q. Why is the government being so generous?

A. Ford's economic advisers hope that consumers will spend the money on goods and services, thus giving the recessionary economy a needed lift. The combined rebate totals $12 billion and that's a lot of potential purchasing power.

Q. Will the rebate also apply to 1975?

A. No, but Ford is proposing credits and tax breaks for this year, including cash payments to the poorest Americans who pay no income tax. Specifics are to be spelled out in Wednesday's State of the Union message.

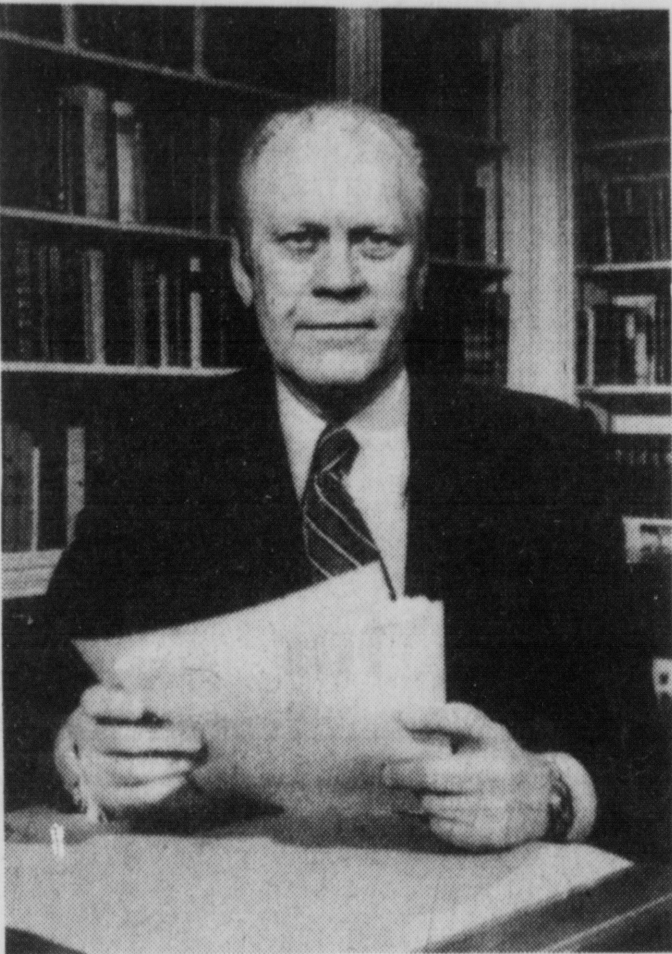

Q. With prices rising so fast, why does the President want to limit increases in Social Security benefit payments?

A. So long as it shuns formal price controls, the government can do little but plead with business and labor to moderate wages and prices. But the government can act on some parts of its own budget to curb inflation and Ford is asking Congress to approve several steps, including a temporary 5 per cent ceiling on cost of living increases in Social Security, government and military retirement pay and salaries and wages of federal workers.

Q. Does Ford want to increase gasoline prices too?

A. Yes, but indirectly. By boosting the tariff — the fee the government charges importers on goods brought into the country — on imported oil, the government will make it more expensive to manufacture fuel oil and gasoline. Refiners will pass on this higher cost to consumers by raising the price at the service station pump.

Fight Swings From Inflation to Recession

PRESIDENT FORD

(UPI)

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dramatic economic events in the last two months forced the sudden change in public policy from fighting inflation to fighting recession.

Despite President Ford's vow Dec. 11 not to make "a 180-degree turn from inflation fighting to recessionary pump-priming," the economic proposals he outlined Monday night bring Ford full circle from his abortive WIN program.

In his "Whip Inflation Now" address in October, Ford called for higher taxes, asked Americans to save their money, urged voluntary energy steps and promised a balanced budget.

In his anti-recession message Monday, Ford proposed a big income tax cut, tacitly urged consumers to spend their money, ordered higher fuel costs as a form of mandatory energy conservation and approved a large budget deficit.

The October program was aimed at inflation and came before the full impact of the recession was felt, although most economists believe the economic slump had been present for a full year.

Last spring, the Federal Reserve Board, the nation's money manager and perhaps the most influential economic policymaker, launched a tough anti-inflation policy by severely restricting the flow of money into the commercial banking industry.

The policy was based on the traditional economic theory that the way to fight inflation was to limit the amount of money available for spending. The prime rate — interest commercial banks charge their most creditworthy corporate customers — rose to a record high of 12 per cent. Businesses were pinched for credit, and mortgage money for housing dried up.

But in October, the Fed reversed its policy and began pouring billions into the banking system, openly encouraged banks to lower their prime rate and made rare public statements that it is doing so because of the economic slump.

What brought about the sudden turn was the rapid loss of jobs in November and December — 1.1 million jobs were lost and unemployment hit a 13-year high of 7.1 per cent and was expected to be the highest in 19 years when January figures are released.

Until then, recession was overshadowed by inflation. Prices were running 12 per cent higher than a year earlier on most consumer goods and even higher on selected items such as gasoline, fuel oil and sugar.

The Arab oil embargo distorted the picture. After the embargo was lifted last March, businesses, fearing another embargo, built up large inventories of goods, production was heavy and unemployment was a relatively light 5 per cent.

But by fall, it was apparent consumers were not buying; businesses suddenly discovered they were overstocked with goods that were not moving; and auto sales, a key barometer, were the worst in 15 years. Deep production cuts were made, and hundreds of thousands of workers were laid off or put on short work weeks.

High unemployment is a sensitive political issue and pressure mounted for a new attack to put the nation back to work.

Tax Cut Main Issue as Congress Convenes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 94th Congress began work today, eager to join President Ford in ramming through a recession-fighting tax cut.

In keeping with tradition, opening day was reserved for swearing-in ceremonies in the ornate Senate and House chambers.

But in advance, House Democrats broke tradition by outlining their programs to combat the ills of the economy. Normally that would wait until after Ford's State of the Union address.

Not to be outdone, Ford went on nationwide television Monday night to outline his economic and energy programs which he would normally have saved for the State of the Union speech Wednesday.

House swearing-in ceremonies were expected to proceed routinely — barring unexpected challenges — giving Democrats a 291-144 majority.

But the same ceremonies in the Senate were expected to provide the first partisan fight and possibly the first roll call of the session.

The Senate must decide whether to seat Democrat

John Durkin or Republican Louis Wyman as New Hampshire's new senator or ask both to step aside until a full investigation of their closely contested election can be completed.

The Senate also must decide a second election challenge. Former Rep. Ed Edmondson wants the Senate to investigate Republican Henry Bellmon's reelection in Oklahoma. The Rules Committee recommended Bellmon take his seat pending outcome of the inquiry.

House Democrats and Republicans elected their leaders in December during pre-session organizational meetings.

Speaker Carl Albert was named to a third two-year term.

Presenting Dem Measures

House Speaker Carl Albert (left), and other House Democratic leaders, pledged to pass a tax cut of $10 billion or more within 60 days. Albert made public a list of "emergency" measures proposed by a 10-member House task force headed by Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex. (right). (UPI)

Another County Jail Escape Thwarted

Snow Follows Vandals Tracks

Mailboxes, torn from their moorings by vandals, lie beneath falling snow Monday off Old Flatbush Road. Several mailboxes at Every's Trailer Park were damaged by vandals over the weekend. (Freeman photo)

KINGSTON Three inmates, one of them awaiting trial on a charge of manslaughter, were foiled in an attempted escape from the Ulster County Jail late last night, according to the Sheriff's Department.

Identified as the inmates attempting to escape the jail were Nicholas V. Malanios of Pottstown, Pa., charged with manslaughter; Michael L. Traficanti, RD 1 Box 386, Kingston, charged with possession of forged instruments in the second degree; and Thomas J. Silva, of Napanoch, also charged with possession of forged instruments in the second degree.

According to the Sheriff's Department report, the three grabbed two guards — identified as Tim McGuire and Stan Miller — after they tried unsuccessfully to get out of the jail through windows, with bedsheets for ropes.

When that failed, according to the report, they contacted the Com Center at the jail, and tried to imitate the voice of a guard on duty, requesting clearance to pass through the gate. The Com Center is the main control center for electronic security at the jail.

However, the tiers at the jail are "constantly monitored," according to a departmental spokesman. According to the report, rather than being deceived, Deputy Sheriff Bob King, then in charge of the Com Center, locked every door in the jail. Ulster County Sheriff

Thomas F. Mayone was in the jail Monday night, conducting a training session with the Ulster County Sheriff's Mounted Patrol. He went to the problem area, and returned the three inmates to their cells. The two guards were released uninjured.

Mayone praised the assistance he received from the members of the Mounted Patrol, who conducted a shutdown of the third tier.

According to the spokesman, at no time had the inmates secured arms during the escape attempt.

Charges in connection with the escape attempt were pending.

Five City Physicians Talk to Carey

By LYNN MULVANEY

ALBANY Five Kingston physicians who were among about 500 in the state who converged on Albany Monday to stress their worry over existing malpractice insurance rates said they found area legislators "very cooperative" and imbued with a great deal of insight concerning the problem which Gov. Hugh L. Carey labeled "patently impossible and intolerable."

Dr. Edmund H. Reppert, president of the Ulster County Medical Society, said they spoke with Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) and found the legislator to be extremely optimistic that some form of legislation will be drawn which would be fair to the injured as well as to the providers of health care.

Accompanied by Dr. Joseph Conrad, representing the Orthopedic Society; Dr. Howard Maas, representing the Surgical Society; Dr. Fred Holcomb and Dr. Walter Levy, the Medical Society president, said he was impressed with "the sober turnout of physicians and the serious effort being given to getting the matter settled."

The insurance firm now handling medical protection in the state recently tried to jump rates to a level two to three times above existing charges, a move that would require annual insurance payments of around $60,000 for some surgeons.

Carey said that medical costs are already a burden or fear to all our citizens and "to pass on to the consumer the almost obscene rates proposed is intolerable."

Dr. Reppert suggested that while the legislators are still exploring the situation and are optimistic that some sort of accommodation can be reached, the physicians are still faced with possible cancellation of their malpractice insurance when the present contract with Argonaut Insurance of Menlo Park, Calif., runs out June 30.

Argonaut had threatened to cancel the insurance of about 27,000 physicians in the state Jan. 10, but gave in to pressure from the State Department of Insurance to extend the deadline to June 30.

Argonaut was seeking a 196.8 per cent increase and has since indicated it will not renew the present contract or negotiate a new one.

Speaking of various options open to prevent a June 30 crisis which would result in a virtual halt to health care, Dr. Reppert told of State Sen. John R. Dunne's bill which would create a pool of insurance companies to write malpractice insurance. He suggested that it would be acceptable but would not be the answer. He called it merely a stop-gap measure because pool premiums would in all probability eventually reach the same heights as those under the present system in view of the people's propensity to pursue malpractice judgments.

Other avenues are also being explored such as amending present legislation to grant immunity to physicians who adhere to "standards of norms" . . . standard sets of conditions . . . self-policing . . . state mediation panels to establish whether a valid case of malpractice exists.

It has also been suggested that State Medical Practice Panels recommendations be admissible as evidence in the event of trial by jury.

Saugerties Rink Controversy Continues

SAUGERTIES
A decision on opening or closing the Main Street skating rink, thrashed out at several recent village board meetings, got another going over at Monday night's meeting of the Saugerties Board of Education.

John Woerthmann Jr., who lives next door to the rink, asked the school board to close it, saying it created water problems in the basement of his home. The rink, situated on school district property, is administered by the village.

Robert Francello, school board president, said it was not up to the school board to make the decision. "We have made the facility available to the village for use," he told Woerthmann. "It is the responsibility of the village board to make the decision."

Francello pledged to cooperate with the village in any decision it reaches and said the rink could be relocated to another piece of school property. He said that board members Wesley Maxwell and Thomas Macarille were available to work with village board members on a solution.

His reply did not satisfy Woerthmann, who on several occasions said: "It is your property, it is your responsibility."

Woerthmann said he had been to see the village board, noting that they had voted to reopen the rink after closing it. Board member Earl Benjamin suggested a meeting between the two boards as soon as possible "to relocate the rink and solve everyone's problem."

The board, unable to sell the unused Malden and Flatbush school properties at a previous sale, lowered the minimum bid prices and set a new auction for Saturday, Feb. 8.

The Flatbush school and property, formerly priced at $20,000, has a new minimum of $17,500 and will be auctioned off at 10 a.m. The Malden school and property, formerly $15,000 will now be at $12,500 and will be auctioned at 12:30 p.m. Terms of the auction are the same as for the previous (no) sale.

Macarille, chairman of the Operations Committee, recommended that a "pot luck line" be established at the high school cafeteria, an additional serving line that would include several choices of sandwiches, fruit, potato chips, and other items to be bought on an individual basis. Mrs. June Myer, director of cafeteria services, was directed to monitor results closely and keep the board informed on its feasibility.

The new line will begin with the second semester and a decision will be made in June about its continuance.

In other action, the board: • Heard Howard Wittenbecher, Saugerties representative to the BOCES board, say that BOCES was almost ready to sign a lease for the Barclay building in Port Ewen for an instructional center.

• Heard Daniel Lee, superintendent of schools, say that about 90 students from the district are expected to take BOCES training next year, up from this year's 75.

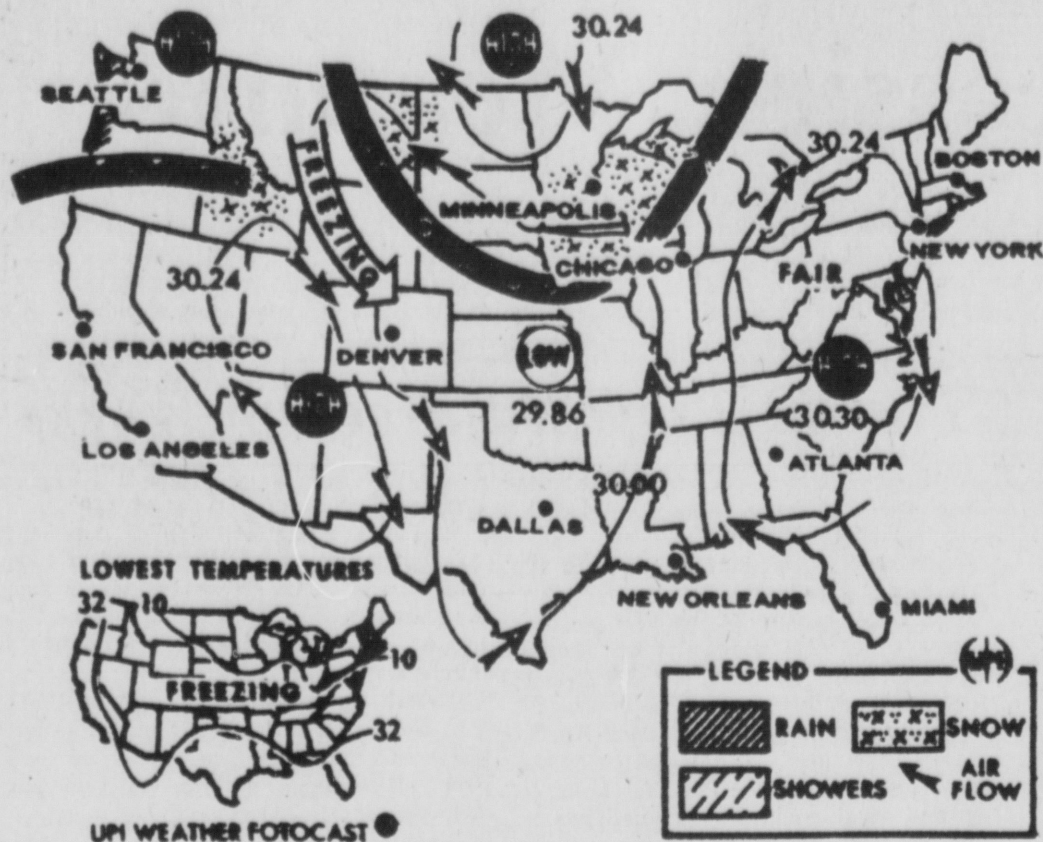

• Transferred William Hayes, high school assistant principal, to the science department at his own request. Hayes had expressed a desire to return to the classroom and was named to fill a recent vacancy in the science department due to a resignation.

• Reminded community organizations using school property that it will not be available on evenings when schools are closed during the day because staff members are not present.

Death Toll Stands at 53 in Killer Snowstorm

By United Press International

A killer snowstorm which buried the Midwest under heavy snows and assailed the Appalachians rumbled off to attack New England today, leaving behind it a heavy shroud of snow and a climbing death toll.

The total of storm-related deaths stood at 53 today and authorities were searching for at least nine persons reported missing in the aftermath of the storm's march across the Midwest.

Seven inches of snow piled up in Concord, N.H., and four inches of snow was reported in Worcester, Mass., and heavy snow warnings were in effect for Maine and New Hampshire.

Temperatures dropped sharply Monday as the storm launched its assault on New England, where a day earlier sunshine and springlike temperatures had brought residents out from their winter's hibernation.

Weekend temperatures had reached the 60s in Boston and the 40s and 50s elsewhere, but the mercury plummeted to the teens and 20s Monday as the storm approached.

The storm brought New York City its first snow of the season Monday night, but it ended as quickly as it started. The National Weather Service had predicted three to five inches of snow for the area and issued a heavy snow warning, but the city received only a dusting and the warning was canceled.

National Guard troops manned snow-moving equipment and hay-lifting helicopters in the blizzard-clogged Midwest, the site of the storm's weekend siege.

Schools were closed and traffic was snarled Monday in the Appalachians as the storm lumbered over the area, dumping a knee-deep blanket of snow.

The National Weather Service said parts of Pennsylvania received up to 15 inches of snow from the storm and West Virginia and Tennessee got up to 12 inches. A foot of snow at Charleston, W. Va., marked the largest snow accumulation in nine years.

The storm and the sub-zero cold wave which followed it were blamed for 11 deaths in Minnesota, 11 in Iowa, 10 in Nebraska, 8 in South Dakota, 2 in Michigan and 1 in Illinois. Storm-related plane crashes claimed 10 lives — 7 in a crash in Virginia and 3 in a Kentucky crash.

In Minnesota, where about 100 schools remained closed by towering snow drifts Monday, officials said a search was under way for eight young persons believed to have been camping in Kanabec County when the worst blizzard in 35 years swirled over the state. One person was listed missing in snow-soaked South Dakota.

Three Iowa farmers reported that an estimated 200 head of livestock valued at $40,000 died of exposure in the 10-to-12-foot snowdrifts which covered their farms.

National Guardsmen dropped hay to stranded cattle and area residents on snowmobiles delivered feed to other snowbound steers.

Good News for Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon received some good financial news for a change. He won't have to pay for half the flight that carried him home in disgrace, and the large and troublesome mortgage on his home — due today — is being paid off.

Who is paying the $523,000 bill is not clear.

Nixon was unable to make a $226,000 payment on his California estate when it fell due last July, and paid $17,000 interest to get a six-month extension.

Nixon's representatives refused to talk about whether the financially troubled former President would be able to make the payment.

But Charles Horning, attorney for the Cotton estate, former owner of the property, said in Los Angeles Monday he had been informed a certified check will be delivered to him Wednesday, covering the $506,000 still due on the estate plus $17,000 interest.

Nixon does not owe the whole sum. The $1.5 million oceanside estate is owned by Nixon together with the B & C Investment Co. — a partnership formed by his two wealthy close friends, Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp.

Horning said Nixon's personal attorney, Charles Butler, had told him the payment would be made, but that Horning had no idea how much would come from Nixon's personal funds. Horning said he won't learn, even after the payment is made, because the check will come from a trust company.

"We will get a certified check and we don't care where it came from," Horning said. "We expect to be paid in full and be out of the picture."

The payment will clear Nixon's debt and those of the Rebozo-Abplanalp partnership, but who paid what proportion will not be known.

Nixon's chief aide, Ronald Ziegler, and Butler both refused to discuss the matter Monday.

"It is a personal financial matter, nothing for public discussion," Ziegler said. Butler said he is constrained by the attorney-client relationship from saying anything about Nixon's finances. "There is nothing here that I can see is newsworthy," he said.

Optimistic Report On Betty Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Physician Dr. William Lukash says First Lady Betty Ford shows no recurrence of cancer and will be able to step up her activities and do more traveling if she wants.

The optimistic report came after Mrs. Ford underwent a four hour "postoperative evaluation" Monday at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland. The checkup was her first major medical examination since doctors removed her left breast there Sept. 28.

"Everything appears to be completely in order," Lukash said. "All the laboratory tests showed that there is no evidence of a recurrence" of the malignancy.

Lukash said Mrs. Ford would be able to "carry on her normal activities" and do "extensive traveling. I expect she will be stepping up her activities."

The examination was supervised by Dr. William Fouty, the surgeon who performed the breast removal.

Mrs. Ford, who is taking chemotherapy treatments every six weeks, will undergo similar medical examinations every four months, Lukash said.

Bag of Shelled Pecans Is Hijacker's Weapon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Laughlin Wright, 47, of Atlanta, is charged with hijacking an Eastern Airlines jet. His "weapon," the FBI said, was a brown bag full of shelled pecans.

The off-duty Philadelphia policeman who helped shove Wright into a bathroom Monday said he pounded on the door of the pilot's cabin, demanding to be flown to Puerto Rico. He was "waving around" the brown bag.

Taking no chances, the pilot of Eastern's Flight 140, from Atlanta to Philadelphia, landed the Boeing 727 at Dulles International Airport, saying he had to refuel for the flight to Puerto Rico. The 60 other passengers were evacuated. With five other police standing around with shotguns, officer James Baldwin opened the lavatory door and told the man to freeze.

He was sitting calmly on the toilet. The FBI said the brown bag contained shelled pecans. Other passengers said Wright was drunk.

John Warburton, a 20-year veteran of the Philadelphia police force who was returning from a trip to the Super Bowl with his family, was sitting in the first seat of the plane near the cockpit door. He said the black man came up and began banging on the door.

"He wanted to get in to see the pilot," Warburton said. "He said he wanted to go to San Juan." He said Wright demanded that "all the whites had to stay on board and the blacks could come along for the ride or get off the plane."

"He didn't appear to be armed. He had a brown bag he was waving around, but he wasn't making any threats."

Warburton said he and an unidentified crew member "hustled him into the men's room."

Edward McDade, a sergeant of the Federal Aviation Administration's airport police, said "When we got to the plane the crew member and a Philadelphia policeman had pushed the man into the bathroom and were holding off the plane. It went real smooth."

"We went up the ramp with our shotguns ready. We were already in the bathroom when we got there. He was in there a good 15 minutes while we tried to talk him out and we finally had to break in the door."

"He was just sitting on the john, calm but scared," McDade said.

An FBI spokesman said: "The suspect was arraigned before a U.S. magistrate and a cash bond of $25,000 was set. He was taken to the Alexandria city jail. He was charged with air piracy and interference with a flight crew. He will have a preliminary hearing on Jan. 22, 1975."

Ford Taps Black

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William T. Coleman Jr., a lawyer with experience in city transit systems, has been selected as President Ford's transportation secretary.

If confirmed to succeed Claude S. Brinegar, Coleman will be the second black Cabinet member in history. The first was Robert Weaver, President Johnson's Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, from 1966 to 1968.

Coleman, 54, helped write the NAACP's Supreme Court brief in the 1954 landmark case outlawing school segregation. He is president of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and a senior partner of a Philadelphia law firm.

As a lawyer, Coleman helped Philadelphia and Cincinnati acquire local transit systems and was involved in transportation labor matters in Philadelphia.

He is a director of Pan American World Airways, but in a telephone interview Coleman would not comment on the sensitive question of federal aid for the financially troubled airline. He said he would resign that directorship and his law partnership if confirmed.

Coleman said he had not planned to take the job but changed his mind in a meeting with Ford last Monday.

"He impressed me with his grasp of the transportation situation," he said.

Former Legislator Is Dead

MARGARETVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Alexander A. Falk, a former state legislator and president of the state's Civil Service Commission.

Falk, 74, died at Margaretville Hospital after being stricken at his home in this Delaware County community.

Falk was first elected to the Assembly in 1926 and was serving as a senator when he was initially appointed a civil service commissioner in 1947. He was president of the commission from January 1955 to April 1959, then stayed on as a member until his retirement in 1968.

In 1936-37, he was a member of the New York City Board of Aldermen and, by appointment of the mayor, a member of the city's Traffic Commission. He was a delegate to the 1938 State Constitutional Convention.

Falk was chairman of the Assembly Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment in 1935. He served on a number of select committees, including the Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Relations, of which he was vice chairman for four years. In 1946, and until his resignation from the Senate, he was a member of the State Judicial Council.

Falk was graduated from Fordham Law School and practiced law in New York City for more than 25 years.

He is survived by his widow, Edith Flavelle Falk. —

Duty to Kill All

BALLINGER, Tex. (UPI) — Noe Jacques, 25, quarreled for months with several youths in the Fernando Martinez family and their friends. He told his father Monday night he had all he could take and was going to kill the entire Martinez family and then himself.

Jacques took a .30-30 rifle and drove around the corner to the Martinez house where a youth standing in the front yard of the house threw a snowball at him.

Jacques got out of the car and fired once, killing the youth.

Fernando Martinez, 50, ran out the front door of the house. Jacques killed him with one shot.

Jacques, a 25-year old television repairman, then climbed back into his car, turned it around and pulled up in the driveway of the Martinez house.

The short, slender Jacques began methodically firing his pump rifle through the windows of the house as the frightened occupants inside tried to block the windows with mattresses.

Two persons were wounded inside — Anita Martinez, 44, the wife of the dead man, and Elia Martinez, 20, the Martinez' daughter-in-law.

No Regrets on Klassen

It would not be fair to blame Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen for all the inadequacies of the Postal Service. He inherited a lot of problems when he took the job in January 1972, and has had much difficulty to contend with since then.

Neither would it be fair to exonerate Klassen of all blame. He is mainly responsible for not ending the inefficiency which persists in spite of rising postal rates. As a former president of American Can. Co. he came to his post with the reputation of being a topnotch business executive. That reputation has been markedly dimmed by his performance in the government.

In the process Klassen acquired a new reputation—for living too high on the hog as a public servant, and for indulging in certain dubious administrative practices. Thus there is no great cause for regret in his announcement that he will step down on February 15, to be replaced by Deputy Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar. Maybe Bailar can do what Klassen failed to do—lift the Postal Service out of its perennial doldrums. Hope springs eternal.

Human Cancer Virus

Identification and isolation of a human cancer-causing virus has been one of the toughest nuts for medical science to crack. The search has gone on for almost half a century. During that period researchers have found more than 100 viruses which cause animal cancer, but a human cancer virus has eluded them.

This background emphasizes the importance of recent findings by National Cancer Institute scientists. The head of the research team, Dr. Robert Gallo, confidently maintains that a virus isolated from the blood of a woman patient is indeed associated with human cancers. If independent tests bear this out—as has not happened with regard to several other such claims in recent years—that will confirm a major breakthrough in the effort to control this disease.

Such a breakthrough could lead to new ways of diagnosing and treating cancer. The discovery might also have application to assessing the effectiveness of methods of treatment. The results of additional work by Dr. Gallo and his associates, and by other teams of scientists, will be anxiously awaited.

Strip Mining Law

President Ford's pocket veto of the strip mining bill is a depressing negation of months of hard congressional effort which resulted in a workable compromise. Now the legislative travail must be resumed in the 94th Congress.

This ought to be undertaken with the least possible delay. The need for law imposing sensible regulation on this destructive method of mining coal remains as great as ever, and indeed becomes more urgent every passing day.

The President put forward two reasons for his veto. He said that the bill's environmental provisions would sharply cut coal production in a time of energy shortages, and that requisite federal spending would have an inflationary impact. The first point is open to challenge, at least as to the magnitude of the figures Mr. Ford cited; the second is of dubious significance.

These presidential reservations will have to be dealt with, however—unless proponents of a tough strip mining bill can muster veto-proof majorities, which seems unlikely. In any case, Congress should promptly get back at the task or re-enacting sound legislation on this subject.

By JACK ANDERSON
With Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — It isn't enough for President Ford to offer new economic solutions. He should also change the economic guard. For the old guard has badly mismanaged the economy.
Their failure can be measured in human misery. They are responsible for throwing hundreds of thousands of out of work, causing thousands of businessmen to go broke, pushing the poor deeper into poverty and reducing the purchasing power of all Americans.

There is no longer any doubt that the Federal Reserve Board restrained the money supply too much. This caused interest rates to soar until businessmen could no longer afford to borrow capital. They were forced to cut back production, lay off workers and curtail expansion. Of course, the President doesn't control the Fed. But his economic managers not only worked closely with the Fed but completely misread the economic signs. They got him all fired up against inflation when his biggest worry should have been recession. On October 15, he declared war on inflation with this ringing appeal to the American people: "Postpone unnecessary borrowing. Wait for interest rates to come down. Save as much as you can."

Thirty days later, the President's economic advisers began to panic over the economic slump and they got him to issue a new clarion call, advocating exactly the opposite.

"Somehow the word has gone out that the best way to defeat inflation and revitalize the economy is to curtail spending," he said, not mentioning that he was the one who had put out the word. "Nothing," he declared, "could be further from the truth."

Only last October, President Ford was calling for a five per cent tax increase. Within 60 days, he began to change his tune. Now he is talking about a multibillion-dollar tax cut to restore consumer purchasing power.

Yet the people who misled the President and brought hard times to millions of Americans are still running the economy.

Footnote: Ironically, the reformers on Capitol Hill are turning against the man who was the first to blow the whistle on the Federal Reserve Board and to challenge the economic thinking in the White House.

They are seeking to strip the aged but alert Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., of his House Banking chairmanship. Several reformers have formed a strange alliance with the bankers' bloc to oust the old warhorse who has always fought the big banks.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Gama Goat, a bouncing new Army field truck, may not be as rugged as its namesake but it is as stubborn to control. The $200 million project has been plagued with problems, but the procurement just keeps going on and on.

Now a secret General Accounting Office report indicates that the Army brass lied to Congress when they claimed the truck's defects had been corrected.

The brass assured the House Armed Services Committee in 1972 that the problems had been solved and the truck was running fine. Taking them at their word, Congress permitted them to go ahead with the procurement. But the GAO report, which we have obtained from locked files, alleges that the Gama Goat isn't doing well at all. "Almost all of the Army personnel expressed dissatisfaction with the vehicle," declares the secret report. The users felt "the vehicle lacks durability.... was difficult and exhausting to drive.... and that it was oversophisticated and a piece of junk."

The GAO also questioned the mobility of the truck, which is supposed to deliver supplies to the front lines. It should be able, therefore, to roll over rough terrain and to cross streams like a barge.

As for the truck's swimming capability, the report charges that the Gama Goat can enter the water only from gently sloped banks with firm soil. "Speed of entry is restricted to a maximum of two MPH and ... cannot be made into a ... current in excess of four MPH or when the wind blows in excess of 20 MPH."

Incredibly, the GAO also found that "most of the vehicles have damaged tailgates that would cause them to sink." Indeed, the vehicles are in need of constant repair, the GAO states.

Despite these failures and the millions spent on the project, the Army is seeking another $6.5 million for a "product improvement program." The GAO has suggested maybe the Army should just dump the project.

Double-Talk on Economic Problems

"I Find I'm Fine!"

By William F. Buckley Jr.

Ronald Reagan is suddenly no longer Governor of California. But unlike many evangelists who experienced office, he has instantly taken on, or rather resumed, a career as a political preacher. He is manifestly not disillusioned by his experience, though perhaps he was frustrated by it. And his interest in his ideas survives his exercise of power. When John Lindsay became Mayor of New York City he was the great prophet of a new metropolitan dream. When he left New York City eight years later, he went off to Europe. I think he is back, but that is a surmise. Certainly he is not a brooding omnipresence in urban politics. Not even an omnipresence.

By contrast, Ronald Reagan, though the stadium is empty, the flags furl, the fires doused, is still jogging around the track. There are those who believe that his industry is directly related to his desire to sit in the White House. Without denying that the desire is there (and I share it), it is also true that before it entered anyone's mind that he should run for governor of California, he was doing the same kind of thing he is doing now. Talking to people, explaining his views on politics. Now he has added radio and television programs, and a newspaper column. Moreover, he is all the more confident about what he says, having served as the governor of the largest state in the union.

"Clearly," Mr. Charles D. Hobbs, a scholarly young writer and public affairs student who worked on three of Reagan's Task Forces, has written in a long article, "California and Reagan are parting friends, and the consensus, except at the raveled fringes of the political fabric, is that both have profited, but the state more so, from their eight-year association. California enters 1975 with a constantly decreasing welfare population receiving constantly increasing benefits; with financially and technically sound energy and water supply systems; with enforced environmental standards that are both lowering air and water pollution and preserving an extraordinary range of recreational opportunities; with a superb highway system that has become an orderly segment of an integrated transportation system responsive to both state and local needs; with $1 billion in property tax relief funds disbursed each year to local governments; with no more state employees than eight years ago, even though in that time state spending has doubled and state services have multiplied; with a public university system in which teaching, learning, and research have replaced violent confrontation and preparation for armed revolution; and with a $500-million budget surplus to buffer California against the coming hard times."

Here was Reagan's hairshirt, and no one put it better than he when he remarked, only a few months ago, "I have also learned that politics, which is often called the second oldest profession, has a great similarity to the first." Notwithstanding the compromises necessary in politics, researcher Hobbs concludes ly: "In my research and experience there is no instance in which (Reagan) has compromised his principles for personal or political gain."

My own judgment is that Reagan was hurt, towards the end, by what grew to be an apparently unreasoned loyalty to the thesis that Richard Nixon had done no wrong. Party loyalty is understood. But an intransigent loyalty is an expression less of devotion to friends and party, than a deafness to impurities which, if they are unchecked, can bore holes in the hull of the entire enterprise, and sink it. Richard Nixon came very close to doing that; indeed, it is by no means to be taken for granted that the Republican Party as such will survive. But whatever regrouping there is, Ronald Reagan will figure in it, in the place of prominence he has earned.

Another Constitution Convention Needed

WASHINGTON—If you changed Boss Tweed's name to Richard Nixon, James Russell Lowell's poem, written on America's 100th birthday, needs no updating to serve us on the 200th:

Columbia puzzled what she should display
Of true home-made on her Centennial Day
Asked Brother Jonathon: he scratched his head,
Whittled a while reflectively and said,
"Your own invention, and own making too?
Why, any child could tell you what to do;
Show 'em your Civil Service and explain
How all men's loss is everybody's gain;
Show your new patent to increase your rents
By paying quarters for collecting cents;
Show your shortcut to cure financial ills
By making paper-collars current bills;
Show your new bleaching process, cheap and brief

To wit: a jury chosen by a thief;
Show your State Legislatures; show your Rings;
And challenge Europe to produce such things
As high officials sitting half in sight
To share the plunder and to fix things right;
If that don't fetch her, why you only need
To show your latest style in martyrs — Tweed:
She'll find it hard to hide her spiteful tears

At such advance in one poor hindred years."

What bitterness the New England poet might have committed to verse if he had been around to witness the second poor hundred years. In his time he only had Ulysses S. Grant, the man who last August was demoted to being the second-worst President in our history. When he died the worst fears of the Founding Fathers were not yet realized—the transfer of the power to ake war from the Congress to the Presidency. Nor could James Russell Lowell have even imagined a CIA or any other federally paid for body of snoops, sneaks, keyhole peepers, possible murderers and potential blackmailers.

The newest CIA scandal has elicited the oldest ploys from men in high places; denials, protestations that the charges are exaggerated, proposals for blue ribbon investigatory committees composed of compromised and co-opted frauds of national distinction. What aren't proposed are measures to give us protection in the future.

No single structural reform has been borne out of the dreary succession of scandals that have become the norm of our public life. Apparently none will, so maybe the time has come to invoke the never-used provisions of Article V of the Constitution that empowered two-thirds of the states to call a Constitutional Convention without the approval of Washington.

Whenever this idea is mentioned it strikes terror in liberal hearts because, it is argued, the first thing "the people" would do in convention assembled is repeal the Bill of Rights. Since it seems that the CIA the IRS, the ICC, the courts and the rest of them are doing that de facto, it's a risk we can afford to take. If our people really would vote to deprive themselves of the rights of fair trial, property, speech, religion and the rest, well, at least we can console ourselves on the way to the camps with the thought we did it to ourselves.

A Constitutional Convention might consider making a number of long overdue changes. It could see to it that never again would we have to put up with more than two years of an unelected President and Vice President; it could strip the Presidency of the pardoning power; it could strip the Senate of the power to approve Presidential nominations, which it does as an automatic procedure, and resurrect the ancient idea of an independently elected Presidential council whose only duty is to pass on appointments.

Engineers Ready on Flood Project, but . . .

KINGSTON "Everything's all ready and waiting," is the word from the Army Corps of Engineers on the long-delayed Uptown Flood Control Project on the Esopus Creek.

City officials, however, who have been ready and waiting for the better part of two years on this $1.6 million project, are taking a definitely conservative view of predictions of a March bid opening.

"If the state comes up with the details on the land they (the Army Corps of Engineers) can go to bid two weeks after they get it," said James G. Connors, director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency. "We hope they make it."

Plans call for the construction of a dike along the Esopus Creek from Washington Avenue to the Col. Chandler Drive and it would appear that only two small parcels stand in the way of final acquisition and with it a construction start.

There is a small section of Kingston Plaza where easements will be required and there is another small section of land along Col. Chandler Drive owned by John Arborio. Indications are that tentative agreements have been reached. The state has forwarded preliminary contracts to the Corps of Engineers and approval is expected by Feb. 1.

The urban renewal agency acquired all the land along the Esopus several years ago and is prepared to turn over creekfront property to the Corps of Engineers when it is needed. The city agreed to maintain the facility, while at the same time reserving the right to reject the project if it exceeds $2 million, the upper limit of federal funding.

The rationale for building the flood control project is to protect low lying areas along the Esopus, such as Kingston Plaza and Dutch Village Apartments. Yacht Club Opposed To Breakwater

KINGSTON Charging that the Hudson Cement Company has "completely destroyed a once very beautiful spot with absolutely no regard for those of us who must live next to it," the board of directors of Hidden Harbor Yacht Club has gone on record as opposed to the firm's proposal to build a 530-foot breakwater in the Hudson to protect its existing dock.

In joining the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County and the Kingston Common Council, the yacht club, which claims a membership of more than 100 persons, cited the "adverse effect" on fish life, the "profound negative effect" on the scenic quality of the river, and the allegation that "the barges would in short order begin to deteriorate leading to the next logical step by the company, application for approval to fill in behind, thus eliminating all water."

The firm plans to fill a number of sunken barges with stone and lash them together to form the breakwater, some 86 feet off shore. In closing reference to Hudson Cement (owned by Streiline Realty, the applicant), Vladimir Bukovac, commodore of the Yacht club writes, "They have demonstrated nothing in the past that would inspire the slightest confidence in their neighbors that this would be a positive move."

"We therefore earnestly request that the Corps of Engineers deny them this application."

The Corps is accepting opinions until Jan. 19.

NAACP Discusses School

KINGSTON The proposed new high school, the Ku Klux Klan (KKK), the jury system, and increased membership were all discussed at Monday night's meeting of the Kingston chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), according to Everett Hodge, head of the chapter.

Hodge said it was decided to send NAACP representatives to the presentation on the new high school Thursday to get information so that the chapter could take a position on the new school. Regarding the lack of information about the new high school to date, Hodge said, "We don't feel the board has leveled with the people."

He said the NAACP in Kingston feels strongly that members of the KKK should not hold "public tax-supported jobs," and should not be allowed to work in prisons, which have a large minority population. He said the Kingston chapter would work with the one in Ellenville, with legal action a possibility.

An effort will be made to have more minority group members on juries, he said.

Hodge said the goal of the Kingston chapter will be to increase membership by 300-500 this year, and invited all to join.

Players Drop Tolan Arbitration

Baseball Showdown Averted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another potential "High Noon" showdown between the Major League Players' Association and baseball's owners was averted Monday when the Players' Association backed down on its grievance suit...

Gaherin, representing the owners; and Peter Seitz of the American Arbitration Association, would have determined a club's right to renew for one year an unsigned player's contract from the previous year.

the renewal provision should also be for one year.

"We're trying to build good faith going into our bargaining," Miller told UPI in explaining the association's position. "Besides which, we think it would be better to approach the entire subject all at once without this thing coming down the middle. We don't think anything constructive can be done before the negotiations."

serve rules. Our problem is bigger than this.

"No one will be affected until after the negotiations, anyway."

Miller said the owners' committee responded well to the withdrawal of the grievance.

"Mr. Gaherin said he regarded the move as constructive and that the best way to resolve differences was between the parties themselves," Miller said.

Tolan's case developed after the San Diego outfielder played the 1974 season without a contract. The Players' Association asked Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after the World Series to remove Tolan from the Padres' reserve list—an act which would have made Tolan a free agent. Kuhn, however, declined, maintaining that Tolan was still a Padre. Tolan then signed his contract for an estimated $70,000.

Other players who played unsigned during past seasons included Sparky Lyle, Stan Bahnsen, Doyle Alexander, Rick Reichardt, Mike Andrews and Ted Simmons.

But, as the seasons went along, the players finally agreed to terms, with Lyle signing his 1974 contract on the last day of the season.

Even if the decision would have been favorable to the players, it would have had no effect on other uniform contract provisions such as trades, sales, waiver procedures and the free agent draft. The owners were afraid, though, that an unfavorable decision would create a tremendous pool of free agents. A player would thus become free by not signing a contract for one year and playing for up to a 20 percent cut off his previous year's salary.

Steelers Agree: Defense Did It

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — It was 8 a.m. Monday when a hunched-over Franco Harris, protecting himself from the gusty winds outside, entered a downtown hotel.

He walked slowly through the lobby, looking for a friend. His hand then reached under his arm and produced a plastic Viking souvenir helmet. He held it up by a horn and then broke into a big grin.

It told it all. The Pittsburgh Steelers were champions of the world and the Minnesota Vikings were dead.

Harris played a major role in that title Sunday, setting Super Bowl records as he rushed 34 times for 158 yards and a touchdown in Pittsburgh's 16-6 victory over the Vikings for the National Football League championship. He was named the game's Most Valuable Player and will receive an automobile.

But the Steelers, to a man, credited their defense with the victory, the sixth for an American Conference club over NFC competition in the last seven years.

It was a defensive front four of L.C. Greenwood, Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes and an ailing Dwight White that set another Super Bowl record by allowing Minnesota only 17 yards rushing. It was the defense that scored the only points of the first half, the first safety in Super Bowl history, and it was the defense that time and again turned the ball over to Harris and his offensive mates.

"Most Valuable Player awards are something I don't concern myself with," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. "If it was up to me, I would have given a car to every player on the team. They were all valuable."

Noll, who was 1-13 in his rookie coaching year of 1969 and built a powerhouse on skillful drafting, may be in the most enviable position of any coach in the NFL.

Not only is his club the Super Bowl champion, earning each player $25,000 in total playoff money, but the Steelers did it with one of the youngest clubs in the league. The front four averages only 26 years of age and linebacker Andy Russell is the only defense starter over 30, at 33. The secondary averages less than 25.

On offense, Harris is only 24 and still in the learning stage, playing in only his third season. And Terry Bradshaw, the butt of jokes around the league for the past five seasons, is reaching the age where quarterbacks reach their peak. He silenced his critics with three brilliant tactical games in playoff victories over Buffalo, Oakland and Minnesota.

"My dad told Art Rooney (Steeler owner) when the Steelers signed me five years ago that in five years ago we'd be in the Super Bowl," said Bradshaw, who also had the pleasure of winning the title in his home state. "I don't believe in stuff like that but here we are."

"This has to be the icing on the cake and I'm just glad I'm part of it. I'm just relieved that it's over. A quarterback is judged as a winner or a loser and when I came off the field, I was just savoring the noise and all the emotion. It was just a great satisfying feeling."

"They can say all they want. We got the ring and we're the champs."

Noll said his next objective is to sit down and get ready for the college draft on Jan. 28 and then take a vacation.

Viking Coach Bud Grant also will sit down, but he may do some different thinking. Grant must decide whether to try still another year with his veteran team or begin to rebuild. The Vikings are an old team and have been routed in two straight Super Bowls.

Pitt Parade

Thousands of Pittsburghers turned out to honor Super Bowl champion Steelers Monday. The parade was marred by some arrests of bottle-throwing youths, but police said the crowd was, as a whole, orderly. (UPI)

Super Celebration For NFL Champs

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In a celebration described by city officials as "just super," an estimated 100,000 cheering fans welcomed home the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers Monday.

Police Superintendent Robert Colville said the crowd that stood shoulder to shoulder in the city's famed Golden Triangle Monday to greet the team was "tame" compared to the 11,000 that moved into the downtown area Sunday night when police made 230 arrests on disorderly conduct and intoxication charges.

"We had businessmen, workers, men and women with their children here today, but last night (Sunday) it was mostly disorderly youths," Colville said.

The crowds lined every available space along the parade route and spilled out into the streets in some sections past restraining ropes when the 50-car motorcade, bearing the players and their wives and team officials, entered the downtown area.

Police said the crowd was "generally orderly," but at least 76 persons were arrested, mostly for drunkenness, in sharp contrast to those taken into custody Sunday after the Steelers had defeated the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl IX and exuberant fans staged a spontaneous celebration.

Hundreds of youths danced in the streets, some to the strains of polka bands while other gyrated to hard rock combos under bright, sunny skies but with temperatures in the mid-20s.

Confetti, chopped pieces of computer cards, ripped up telephone books and newspapers covered the streets. Rolls of toilet paper were draped over utility lines like giant pieces of spaghetti.

Youths climbed trees, utility poles and street lights to get a vantage view of the parade led by Mayor Pete Flaherty with Quarterback Terry Bradshaw in the lead car. One UPI reporter assigned to the celebration said Flaherty and Bradshaw looked "scared" when the fans closed in on their car and began pounding on the roof and windows.

Many of the youths, some of high school age, drank beer openly from bottles and cans.

Bartender Danny Noble, who dispenses drinks at a downtown restaurant, said he sold six barrels of beer in about 3 1/2 hours, "the most I ever sold in this short a period of time."

Police officials had been prepared for a crush of 300,000 people into the downtown area but they felt that the many arrests made Sunday night and the sub-freezing temperatures tended to hold down the crowd.

The motorcade entered the downtown area about an hour after two planes carrying the players, their families and Steelers officials landed at the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport about 3:15 p.m.

All along the parkway to the city, which had been closed to regular traffic, people stood along the berm and waved signs and Steeler pennants. Hundreds gathered on the overpasses to get a glimpse of their heroes.

A sign hanging outside the gray, stone walls of the Allegheny County Prison in downtown Pittsburgh, proclaimed: "Super Steelers win Super Bowl IX."

Indiana Foes Seek Moral Wins

By UPI

Indiana must be as good as its No. 1 ranking indicates because opposing coaches are beginning to seek moral victories when they play the Hoosiers.

A moral victory, that's the saccharine substitute used when you can't have the real thing. Minnesota Coach Bill Musselman was availing himself of moral victories Monday night after Indiana rolled over his young Gophers team, 79-59.

With a team as tall and strong as the North Woods, Minnesota utilized a zone defense in the first half to contain Indiana. But, once the Hoosiers had gained a ninepoint lead with six minutes left in the game, Indiana spread out its offense and went into a stall to force the Gophers out of their zone.

The tactic proved effective as the Hoosiers easily stretched their nine-point margin to the final 20-point difference.

But Musselman found a silver lining in his team's demise against the heavily-favored Hoosiers.

"When the No. 1 team in the country holds the ball for six minutes against a bunch of freshmen and sophomores, I think that shows what they think of our club," Musselman said.

"I think they're an excellent team, but we're not too bad either."

Musselman said Indiana "had to fight their hearts out to win."

Indiana led 43-37 at halftime, but Minnesota fought back to within two points before the Hoosiers took command again. They called time out with six minutes to play and went into a controlled offense, gradually extending their lead.

"We had enough points that we were going to shoot only when we got an uncontested layup or got fouled," Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said.

The Hoosiers' victory was a school record 15th in a row and tightened their hold on first place in the Big Ten with a 4-0 mark.

Scott May scored 19 points to lead Indiana. Hoosier sophomore Kent Benson finished with 17 points and senior Steve Green had 14. Minnesota's 6-foot-10 freshman Mark Olberding got game scoring honors with 23 points.

In other games involving nationally-ranked teams, seventh-ranked Alabama struggled past Mississippi, 74-71, and No. 10 Kentucky edged 16th-rated Tennessee, 8-2.

West Favored in NBA All-Star Game

PHOENIX (UPI) — The West, thanks mainly to the presence of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and high-scoring Rick Barry, is a three-point favorite to beat the East in tonight's 25th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game.

Abdul-Jabbar, the 7-foot-2 center of the Milwaukee Bucks, is rated the dominant player in professional basketball today. Despite missing the first six weeks of the season because of a scratched eyeball suffered in an exhibition game, he still shows a 29-point average and was the leading vote-getter among the starting players named to the West squad by the fans.

In contrast to previous years, fans were allowed to vote for the five starters on each squad and Abdul-Jabbar led all West players with 77,832 votes. Barry, of Golden State, leads the NBA in scoring with a 33-point average and received 60,547 votes to nail down a starting forward position in the game that begins at 10 p.m. EST and will be nationally televised (CBS).

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, who warmed up for tonight's performance by scoring 41 points and pulling down 13 rebounds against Boston Sunday, topped all players in votes with 98,325 and will start opposite Abdul-Jabbar at the opening tap-off. The remainder of the East starters include the New York Knicks' backcourt duo of Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe, along with forwards John Havlicek of Boston and Elvin Hayes of Washington.

The game will mark Havlicek's seventh straight All-Star game appearance and the ninth in his 13-year career.

Starting for the West, along with Abdul-Jabbar and Barry, are guards Nate Archibald of Kansas City-Omaha and Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles and forward Spencer Haywood of Seattle.

K.C. Jones of Washington, whose Bullets have on 29 of their first 41 games this season and sport a league-leading winning percentage of .707, will coach the East, while Al Attles of Pacific Division-leading Golden State will coach the West. Should Jones' and Attles' teams still have the highest winning percentages in their respective conferences at the end of the regular season they would receive the two newest awards instituted by the NBA as announced Monday by outgoing commissioner Walter Kennedy. The awards, respectively, are the Ned Irish Trophy and the Fred Zollner Trophy. Irish was formerly president and owner of the New York Knicks, while Zollner served in the same capacity with the Detroit Pistons. Both are now retired.

Rounding out the East squad are guards Jo Jo White of Boston and Phil Chenier of Washington, forwards Dave Cowens and Paul Silas of Boston, Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston and Steve Mix of Philadelphia and center Wes Unseld of Washington.

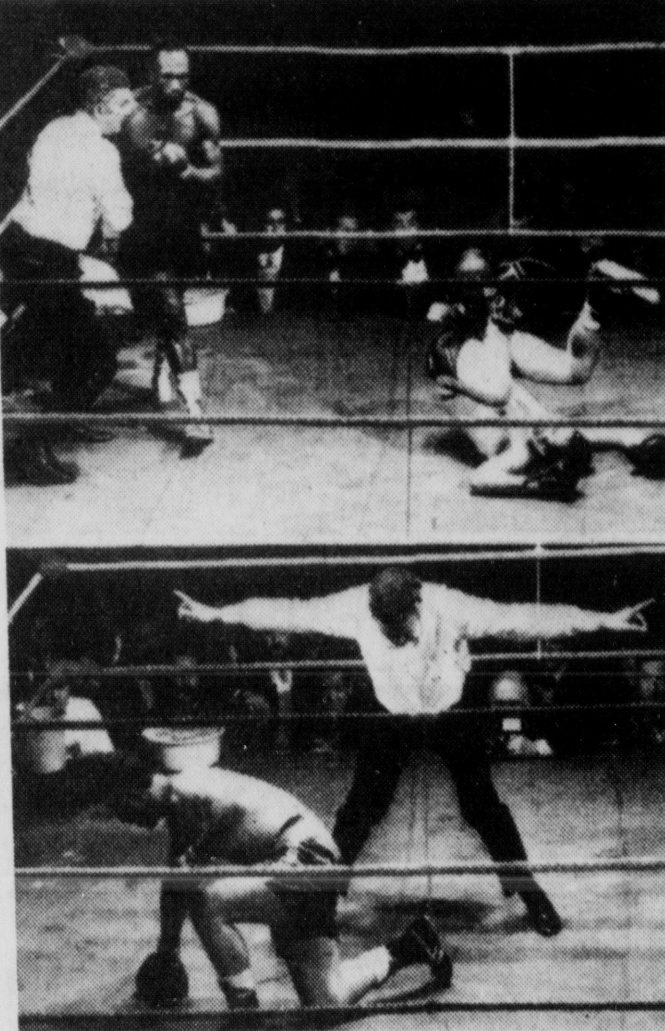

They were selected to the team by the Eastern Conference coaches, while the West coaches selected the remaining seven players on that team and they include: guards Dave Bing of Detroit, Charlie Scott of Phoenix, and Jim Price of Milwaukee, forwards Bob Dandridge of Milwaukee and Sidney Wicks of Portland and centers Bob Lanier of Detroit and Sam Lacey of Kansas City-Omaha.

Prior to the game, the NBA's Board of Governors will meet and are expected to continue their discussions centering around the naming of a successor to Kennedy, who will leave his post June 1. One of the men prominently mentioned for the post is current Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine, who was appointed to his current job in November.

Kennedy, who was named commissioner in 1963 and has directed the NBA's growth from a nine-team league to its present 18-team set-up, was honored with a filmed tribute Monday night at a $25-a-plate banquet attended by some 1,500 people.

Also honored at the dinner with certificates of appreciation for their contributions to the game were former Philadelphia owner Eddie Gottlieb and current Boston general manager Arnold "Red" Auerbach.

Wilson Scores 26 at Wallkill

WALLKILL Margaret Wilson produced 26 points, her team's top performance of the season, to lead the Wallkill High Panthers to a 54-24 triumph over Marlboro in an Ulster County Athletic League battle.

She surpassed her own mark of 25 which she set the first time Wallkill played Marlboro in the second game of the year. Bev Vegliando added 13 points to the cause that lifted the Panthers' record to 8-2 and kept them tied for the division lead with Pine Bush.

Kingston High At Peak for Arlington

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON Kingston High, right in the thick of the DCSL basketball race after its recent victory over Beacon journeys to Arlington today seeking its fourth straight win.

Saugerties, meanwhile, will try to shake a winless slump against visiting Ketcham. In other games, unbeaten Lourdes faces Roosevelt, Poughkeepsie is at Spackenkill and John Jay is at Beacon.

In the Ulster County Athletic League, Wallkill is at Marlboro, Onteora is at Highland, New Paltz is at Red Hook, Pine Bush is at Rondout, Coleman is at Fallsburgh and Liberty is at Ellenville.

Kingston stands at 3-1, tied with Poughkeepsie and Roosevelt for second place behind 4-0 Lourdes. The Maroons are at a peak of sorts since their latest win was a come-from-behind effort against a team rated as one of the league's pre-season favorite.

"We must beat a contender," stated KHS coach Mike Rienzo just before his squad went out and did just that. Kingston is now an established contender itself and on top of that an improving ball club.

The Maroons' bench has played a big role to date. Depth has taken the pressure off the starters and allowed Rienzo more freedom in adjusting his style of play. Rebounder Greg Glass and guard Daryl Mills have led the shock troops.

At Arlington Kingston will face a good shooting club led by San Filippo and Bill Southworth. The Admirals are coming off a 16 point loss to Poughkeepsie.

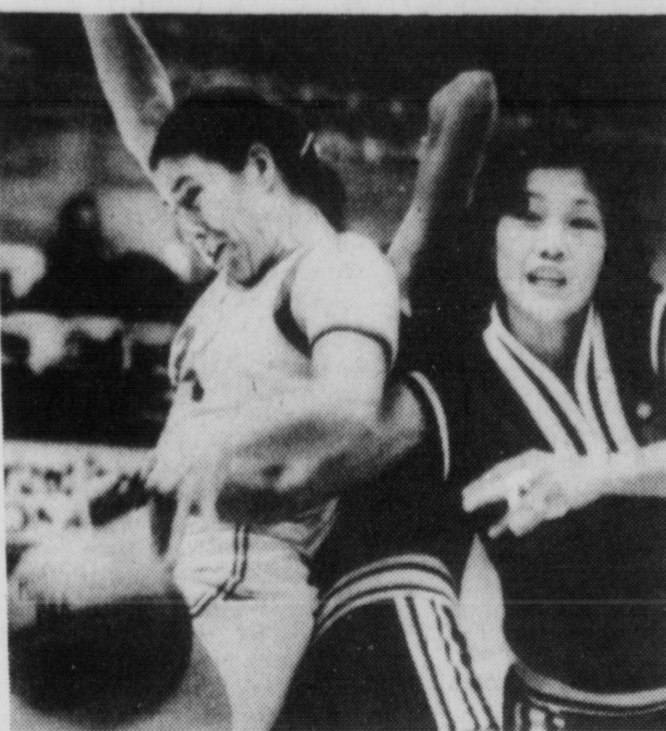

Saugerties has played the best basketball in the DCSL this year . . . occasionally, in each of their last three contests the Sawyers have surged by opponents with streaks like 14-2, 21-9 and 12-0 only to fritter away big leads.

The Sawyers need a win before depression sets in and coach Larry Marcus has torn all his hair out. The Indians present a good opportunity for just that since they are only 1-3 themselves having beaten only last place Spackenkill.

Leadership in pressure situations has simply been absent when the Sawyers needed it. It's going to be up to Chris Luley or Arnie Hackett or Scott Hunter or Brian Holley or somebody else to provide that factor if Saugerties is going to revive itself.

The UCAL is still in its interdivisional phase, and there's a clear cut favorite in every matchup. Fallsburgh and Liberty, the league's unbeaten, should continue to roll along at the top of Division I, and Marlboro appears to have found its niche in Division II's first place.

Highland, Red Hook and Rondout will hold, among other things, the home court advantage. In addition to that they'll all be facing teams trying to recover from big defeats.

Angie Johnson of the National Team of Canada (L) loses control of the ball as Hou-ling (R) of the Republic of China Cathay Life Co. team, knocks it from her grasp during international women's tournament at Omaha, Neb. China beat Canada 80-48 for the title. (UPI)

Pacers Top Virginia

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — There are times when Indiana Pacers Coach Bob "Slick" Leonard gets so angry with referees that he hoots and hollers, getting himself slapped with a $50 fine and his team a technical foul.

Leonard didn't want this to happen Monday night in the Pacers' ABA game with the Virginia Squires. So instead of getting in an argument, he went for a walk.

"We couldn't afford for me to stay out there," said Leonard, who suddenly left courtside midway through the third period with his team ahead by 12 points.

The Squires charged back to within three, 65-62, but the Pacers, without Leonard's guidance, regained control and beat Virginia, 105-88.

"If I had stayed out there it would have cost me $50," said Leonard, indicating he was on the verge of firing some heated remarks at the referees.

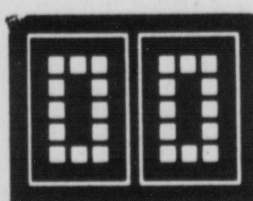

He said, "I wasn't doing the team any good, so I left. Sure we had the lead. I wanted to see if they could hold it. If they couldn't, they couldn't say I had lost the game."

initially believed that he was ill. But he dispelled that, saying, "I haven't been sick a day in my life."

Forward George McGinnis led the Pacers' attack with 36 points, hitting 12 field goals and 12 of 17 from the foul line. Darnell Hillman contributed 16 points to Indiana's assault, while Billy Knight added 15 and former Squire Johnny Neumann 14. Guard Dave Twardzik, who's playing with an injured leg, was the Squires' big gun with 16 points.

It was Virginia's eighth straight loss.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a son who will be receiving his degree in medicine at Georgetown Medical School this spring. We wish to announce that he has received his degree, and a reception in his honor will be held at our home in Maine.

Would you please suggest wording of the announcement, and the type of paper?

Dear Mrs. Knotts: Announcements are not generally sent out to announce a man's graduation from medical school. The invitations you send out for the reception you plan to have for your son serves as announcements.

Your stationer will be glad to show you printed "fill-in" invitation cards on good quality paper. Fill in the pertinent information and at the top write: "In honor of John's graduation from Georgetown Medical School."

And congratulations to your son!

Dear Mrs. Post: Shortly before Christmas, one of my neighbors sent everyone religious pamphlets instead of cards. Her religion is very different from mine, and I resent it.

Will you please comment on this in your column?

Dear Priscilla: Yes, I'll comment gladly. Christmas is a season to extend good wishes to your friends — not to try to convert them. A religious pamphlet is no substitute for a Christmas card, whether the card has a religious theme, or is simply a carrier of "holiday greetings."

Furthermore, one should not send cards of one's own faith to those of another faith; cards depicting the Christ child in the manger are not an appropriate choice to send to your Jewish friends. There are plenty of season's greetings and Santa Claus cards, which bring joy to a household and offend no one.

For suggestions about to whom, when, how and what to give, you will find my booklet "Gifts and Giving," most helpful. To get a copy, send 50¢ in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

LIFE

Virginia King Is Bride of R.J. Barogin

Virginia M. King, daughter of Lawrence C. King of Hurley and the late Helen M. King, was married to Robert J. Barogin, son of Mrs. James Norton of Pearl Street, Kingston.

The double ring ceremony took place at St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, with the Rev. Thomas Marley and the Rev. Msgr. James Keating officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a silk gown styled in the late 1800's tradition. The fitted bodice, high neckline and bishop sleeves were trimmed with white lace accented with red velvet ribbon. The A-line skirt terminated in a long self-train and was accented in the same fashion as the bodice and sleeves. Her train-length, silk illusion veil was attached to a modified picture hat, trimmed to match the gown. She carried a large bouquet of white carnations and red roses interspersed with holly and baby's breath. After the ceremony the bride placed a rosary of red carnations at the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Miss Patricia Lynne Clark of Hurley served as maid of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Pamela Otruba of Long Island, sister of the bridegroom; the Misses Lynne Graves of Stamford, N.Y., Margaret Egan of Hurley and Annarose Ingarra of Kingston.

The maid of honor wore a red velvet gown with a short detachable hooded cape, designed in the Victorian style with a fitted bodice and trimmed with white lace at the high neckline. The sleeves were puffed from shoulders to elbows and trimmed with white lace, then became tight fitting and point at midhand. The skirt was slightly gathered at the waistline and fell into a short train at the back. The matching cape was waist-length in the front and gradually lengthened in back, with a self-lined hood. She carried a white fur muff to which mistletoe and red roses had been attached.

Attendants wore green velvet gowns and hooded capes in the same styling as the honor attendant's. To their muffs were attached sprays of red carnations and mistletoe.

Chretien Voerg of Saugerties, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer in a suit consisting of red velvet knickers and matching bow tie with a white lace shirt, fur cummerbund and white tights.

Attendants' gowns and the ring bearer's suit were designed and created by Barbara Voerg, sister of the bride.

Joseph Bostic of Kingston served as best man. Ushers were Stephan Foster of Woodstock; Thomas Reis of Glenelg; Gary Bittner of Kingston; and Chris Farrell of Connelly. Joseph Uhl and George Uhl of Kingston, nephews of the bride, participated as altar boys.

A reception was given at Flamingo Restaurant in Saugerties.

Mrs. Barogin, a 1971 graduate of Coleman High School, is a senior at State University College at New Paltz where she is majoring in Psychology.

Her husband, a 1968 graduate of Kingston High School, was graduated from State University College at New Paltz, class of 1972. He is employed by Frank H. Reis Insurance.

After a trip to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Mr. and Mrs. Barogin will reside at Patch Road, Fishcreek.

Pork features, although not as widespread as beef, should not be bypassed — especially pork loin rib end at 95¢, pork loin — loin end at $1.09, rib chops from 98¢ to $1.05 and spareribs in the vicinity of 89¢. 'Brim to Put the Vim' in Hat Sales

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hat designers expect the brim to put the vim back into their sales reports.

Brim widths from two inches to 10 and 12, straight and snappy, floppy and facehiding, slanted to the side or turned back off the brow dominated the designs of their spring and summer offerings at a musical fashion presentation at the Americana Hotel.

The event was the semiannual summary of trends from the Millinery Institute of America, a trade and promotion organization.

It was a case of "let's hear it for the brim," whether the hats were for Easter dressing, for an old-fashioned garden party glamour, for spectator sports or for evening.

Just occasionally a brimless number crept in, most often for evening, as in head-hugging white jeweled helmets in crocheted or white satin turbans, with a touch of ostrich plume.

The look in general is one of airiness, no matter what the width of the brim. For there's lots of openwork in embroidered, starched fabrics, natural color straws and black see-through horsehairs.

Trim was kept to a minimum and there wasn't a flowered hat, which used to be a spring tradition, in the whole group of 52 chapeaux.

Ostrich plumage in clusters or swept back over crowns was the favorite trim, when trim was used. One pale green straw with narrow upturned brim came with plumage in the same tone and its designer, Frank McConnell, must have been leafing through costume history books — it looked with its peaked front over the brow almost the same as the Empress Eugenie riding hat of the 1850-70 period.

All told, the hats were appealing enough to get women back wearing hats on a regular rather than special occasion basis. The hatless look has had industry sales ailing for several years.

THE BRIMMED LOOK for spring and summer is represented in designer Frank Olive's airy white openwork embroidered hat, shown during the Millinery Institute of America's semi-annual presentation of new styles. Hat designers are counting on the brim to put the vim back into their sales reports. (UPI)

Forty Winks on the Ten Commandments?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
UPI by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News-Sentinel, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful idea, but I need your help. We should go back to God's laws, so I thought up the idea of having the Ten Commandments printed on bedsheets and pillow cases.

If all the people who are shoplifting were to see "Thou shalt not steal" printed on their bedsheets every night, they would quit stealing.

Also, people need to be reminded that it is a sin to kill and to commit adultery, and to covet another man's wife. They forget that it's God's law to honor their mothers and fathers, and to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. If we had the Ten Commandments printed on bedsheets and pillow cases, it would change the world.

I wrote to two manufacturers of bed linen, and even sent them a sample sheet that I made up myself, and they both turned me down flat.

What do you think of my idea?

GREAT IDEA IN WASHINGTON

DEAR GREAT: Send me a sample, and I'll sleep on it.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it considered the wife's responsibility to take care of all the social obligations? SHE has to acknowledge all the gifts with thank-you notes. And if she doesn't do it, THEY don't have bad manners, SHE does.

SHE is expected to remember all the birthdays, weddings, anniversaries, graduations, etc. on both sides of the family. She also has to do all the Christmas shopping for her family and his.

The fact that the husband "works" supposedly excuses him from all other obligations even buying a birthday card for his own mother. To day many wives are also working full-time outside the home, but this isn't an acceptable excuse for them.

If you can explain this to me, Abby, you are a genius.

A WOMAN, NATURALLY

DEAR WOMAN: I'm no genius, but I'll try: The notion that all the social obligations should be handled by the wife is a carry-over from the days when the wife stayed home and took care of the kids, the kitchen, the correspondence and the Christmas list.

Today, when so many women contribute financially to the support of the family, I think their husbands should assume their fair share of the social obligations.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU WHO HAVE THE TIME TO READ FOR PLEASURE: Since my own time is limited, I must be extremely selective about the books I read for pleasure. But THE WOMAN HE LOVED, by Ralph G. Martin was well worth my sured his contract by playing dummy's king but instead played small. East played the deuce of hearts, whereupon West shifted to the 10 of clubs. Dummy's jack lost to East's king. East cashed the ace of hearts and then made the mistake of leading a trump.

"Chucked and possibly rechunked," murmured South. "I should have put up the king of hearts at trick one."

Then South won the spade; ruffed his last heart and ran off all his trumps.

The last trump lead squeezed West. He had to discard a club in order to retain his ace of diamonds. Now South discarded the last diamond from dummy and made the last three tricks with dummy's ace queen and six of clubs. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Hussein on Mideast: Time Running Out

By UPI

Villagers in southern Lebanon demonstrated today against Israeli ground and air attacks on their homes and pleaded for more help from the other Arab nations.

Witnesses said Israeli troops kept up intermittent artillery fire aimed at isolated areas along the border during the demonstrations. Armed police halted an attempt by the protesters to occupy the government headquarters in the town of Marjayoun.

Newsmen said the Israeli shelling was concentrated on the same area that has long been the target of Israeli attacks, border crossings and heavy clashes between Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese troops.

The newsmen said the demonstrators, mainly residents of the border village of Chouba and students from Marjayoun, called for greater Arab support to defend Lebanon against repeated Israeli attacks.

Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat said in an interview published today that this month will be crucial for Middle East activity.

"I expect that between now and the end of the month matters will be determined decisively," Arafat told the Beirut newspaper Al Anwar.

He said Egypt and Jordan have recently received Israeli offers for a partial withdrawal, but Syria has not been approached.

He did not elaborate on the offers, but said, "I do not believe our brothers in Egypt will accept."

Commenting on expected developments in the coming few weeks, Arafat said:

"Either there will be a partial settlement, or the cards will have to be reshuffled."

Jordanian King Hussein, troubled by a sharp increase in Arab-Israeli fighting, says "time is running out" for a Middle East peace settlement.

Hussein said Monday "it is extremely urgent that the momentum for peace be regained as soon as possible to avert a fresh disaster."

"Time is running out," he told newsmen in Amman. "I do feel that unless progress is continued, the mood in the area will be far worse than that which existed prior to the 1973 war."

The 39-year-old king's comments came on a day when Palestinian guerrillas fought day-long battles with Israeli troops who struck across the border into southeastern Lebanon for the third day in a row.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Upper income wage earners, and perhaps those in the upper middle brackets, might as well forget about a cut in taxes if initial congressional reaction is a guide.

With few exceptions, influential House members said any cut in taxes — such as President Ford's proposed 12 per cent 1974 rebate to a maximum of $1,000 — should be aimed only at those in the lower to middle income brackets.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., incoming chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said the panel would begin work on a tax cut soon with an eye toward having a bill on the House floor in March. But he said Ford's program probably would be altered significantly.

"The President's tax reduction program is acceptable in amount but not in the way it is effected," Ullman said. "Any credit for 1974 taxes would have to be given to the low and moderate income group to be acceptable to Congress in my judgment."

Ullman also said changes would be made in Ford's proposal to increase the investment tax credit for business from 7 per cent to 12 per cent, but he would favor maintaining about the same dollar amount of relief — $4 billion.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, an influential Republican member of Ways and Means, said he would oppose tax cuts for anyone making more than $15,000 per year.

"I frankly think there's going to be very little sentiment to give rebates to taxpayers who have not been adequately hurt by inflation so that they're having a bad time," Conable said.

Conable said tax cuts for upper income persons would only go into savings accounts and would not be spent, which he said is the entire idea of a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

Rep. James Corman, D-Calif., said he would be "very reluctant" to accept Ford's plan.

"I think you ought to make it 20 per cent up to $500, or some such," he said.

Corman also said he was disturbed that the revenue loss would be so great.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., said the Democrats, who presented their own economic and tax proposals Monday, were "not seeking a confrontation with the President."

"All we're seeking are solutions. And to the extent his recommendations parallel ours, we say so much the better."

Underscoring a division on the Ways and Means panel which might delay a tax bill, Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., said he was not yet convinced a tax cut would not "fuel the fires of inflation more."

Waggoner also said he feared other tax proposals could die if a quick tax cut was enacted.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., a presidential hopeful, also said he would prefer that a tax cut be aimed at low and moderate income persons.

"The need is much greater at these income levels, and persons in these brackets would be more likely to spend the money on consumer items, providing a needed economic stimulus," Bentsen said.

Bentsen criticized Ford's proposals for greater taxes on oil as "far too excessive."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., also said he did not believe a tax cut for "big earners" would stimulate the economy.

House Banking Committee

chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said, "I'm glad that the President has at long last recognized the need for a tax cut, but his speech is a sad reminder of how many of our economic difficulties could have been avoided if the administration had accepted congressional suggestions in this area months ago."

Schlesinger on CIA: Some Misdemeanors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James Schlesinger says his post-Watergate review of domestic Central Intelligence Agency operations disclosed a "quite small" number of "misdemeanors" over the past 20 years.

Schlesinger, a former CIA director, made the surprise disclosure to newsmen Monday after appearing for an hour before an eight-member panel headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller which is investigating domestic spying activities of the CIA.

Rockefeller refused to detail what went on at the meeting, but told newsmen Schlesinger also referred to a "small number of misdemeanors" in his testimony. The Vice President added: "That's his value judgment... I don't think the committee is going to try and jump to any conclusions until we hear from a large number of witnesses."

Rockefeller said Schlesinger did not detail the misdemeanors. It was not indicated whether they involved wiretapping, surveillance and dossiers on some 9,000 anti-war and other militants.

The present CIA director, William Colby, and Richard Helms, who headed the agency when many of the illegal spying activities allegedly took place, also were questioned Monday by the panel. Senate Democrats caucus meets today to discuss what to do about the CIA controversy. The Senate Armed Services Committee also scheduled a closed door meeting to discuss the matter.

House Democrats, divided on how to investigate the CIA charges, Monday put off indefinitely action on a proposal to create a panel like the Senate Watergate committee to probe the matter.

Schlesinger, who headed the CIA from February to July 1973, said disclosures of CIA involvement in the Watergate scandal prompted him to launch a broad review of all agency activities.

"I think there were a number of issues that came about as a result of the review of intelligence activities at the agency precipitated by the Watergate revelations," he said. "The entire history was made. Certain things came to light."

Schlesinger's investigation was apparently prompted by disclosures that White House plumber E. Howard Hunt had used CIA facilities after the break-in at Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and that three of the Watergate burglars, including Hunt, were former CIA operatives.

Schlesinger did not characterize the violations for newsmen, except to say:

"These bear on an entire history of the CIA over the past 20 years — most of the things uncovered were going on through — go all the way back through the 1950s. The number of misdemeanors in that period is, I think, quite small."

Asked if the CIA had taken steps to end those violations, Schlesinger replied, "corrective actions are continuously necessary in any institution, and I think corrective actions had been under way prior to my arrival, while I was there and after I left."

Rockefeller said the committee, which meets again next Monday, will not at this time ask Congress for subpoena power since Colby has agreed to make any member of his staff available for questioning.

The self-employed retirement law has been changed. If you are a salesman, doctor, lawyer, dentist, operator of an unincorporated business, or otherwise self-employed, you can now deduct from your current year's income tax as much as 15% of your annual, self-employed income — up to a new maximum of $7,500 a year.

Heritage Savings Bank can help you take advantage of this new tax law. We can assist you in setting up an IRS approved, tax-favored retirement plan. And serve as trustee and depository for your retirement account. Presently, there are no brokerage or trustee fees levied for our services.

Better yet, not only is your retirement account contribution tax-exempt until you retire, but the interest you earn on your retirement account also falls into the same tax-deferrable category.

New F.D.I.C. $40,000 per account maximum insurance effective November 27, 1974.

Most important, you know that your retirement savings at Heritage are safe. Secure. Guaranteed. Insured. And continually growing. You can earn up to 7½% guaranteed interest per year (effective annual yield — 7.90%) with one of our four to seven year term-accounts, with a minimum deposit of $1,000.

Just another example of how we provide for your secure future. And you.
